

What is that book about?

Find out by reading a book review. A book review is an article which describes and evaluates a book within a few years of its publication.

Citations and full text links to book reviews are included in many of the Hekman Library's Research Databases. We also have print volumes of Book Review Index.

Start your search with one of the three FirstSearch databases listed below:

Article First

Covering 1990 to the present, this database contains brief records for over 16,000 publications.

Book Review Digest

Covers book reviews from nearly 100 American and Canadian periodicals, as well as 95 selected journals in the humanities, sciences, and social sciences, as well as library review media.

Humanities Abstracts— this database covers 1984 to the present. Choose "book review" under "record type phrase" to limit your search.

Book Review Index— this is not located online but these print volumes from 1965-current can be found in reference collection on second floor. Reviews are arranged by author's last name. Check the year that the book is published as well as the following 2-3 years.

October is American Archives Month

Next time you are in the library, check out our archives by taking a trip to the Heritage Hall. Here you will be able to research the records of Calvin College, Calvin Seminary, and the Christian Reformed Church in North America. In addition, the collection holds the personal papers of the college and seminary faculty and staff, ministers in the denomination, and letters detailing the Dutch migration and the impact of this migration on North America. You might even find a picture of an ancestor in one of the 5000 digital images available in the The Hekman Digital Archive (HDA) collection.
